PREFACE

In the days of inquiring boyhood I was unable to learn much of the family back of my father's father and grandfather, of whom he was fond and proud. I have the family Bible with the earliest entry of James Green, born in Barnstable, Mass., 1728. When I sought outside for information, Amos Otis' Barnstable Families blocked the way by sending me on a false clue. Many years I worked until I exhausted every possibility at Charlestown or Boston vicinity, then I returned to the vicinity of Barnstable, and was rewarded by finding the birth of Wm. Greene, father of James, and marriage of his father Wm. Greene, the emigrant ancestor, where I was forced to stop, for the present, so I began my search for his descendants.

In the garret of Richard Green where I spent many a rainy day in the forties, was a little smooth three-footed iron pot worn through in a little round hole, which seemed to fascinate my finger by its razor edge. Everyone said confidently "that came over in the Mayflower." To my question with whom? I never got any definite answer, tho' father said "Winslow I suppose." I worked on this and found if our Winslow (Kenelm) brought it over, it was on the second trip. Meanwhile in 1857, the home was broken up, my grandmother came to New York, and the contents of the garret (they told me) went up the Landing Hill on Peter Martin's cart. I have spent time and offered money in the hope of its return, so far without success. Is it not strange an humble culinary vessel should be remembered, when no one knew the names of those who owned the thing, tho' their own flesh and blood?

I give herewith what I have found from time to time, as occasion offered, and if you had followed me in the search, and met with me the disappointments, you would understand why it is not more complete. To my kindred I give the result. I can say: every descendant of the first William

Greene through his wife Elizabeth Warren, has descent from "good Richard Warren;" every descendant of his only son William Greene, Jr. by his marriage traces also to John Tilley, Elizabeth and John Howland, of the same company. There are individual cases of additional lines to the Pilgrim fathers, but the above are common to all the family.

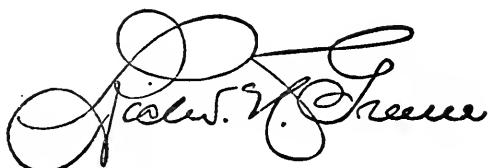

There is however one more matter of especial interest: the wife of Capt. James Green and consequently all their descendants, trace, not by tradition, but unmistakably to three of the Barons, made sureties for Magna Charta, to wit.: Henry de Bohun, Earl of Hereford; Saier de Quincy, Earl of Winchester and Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford.

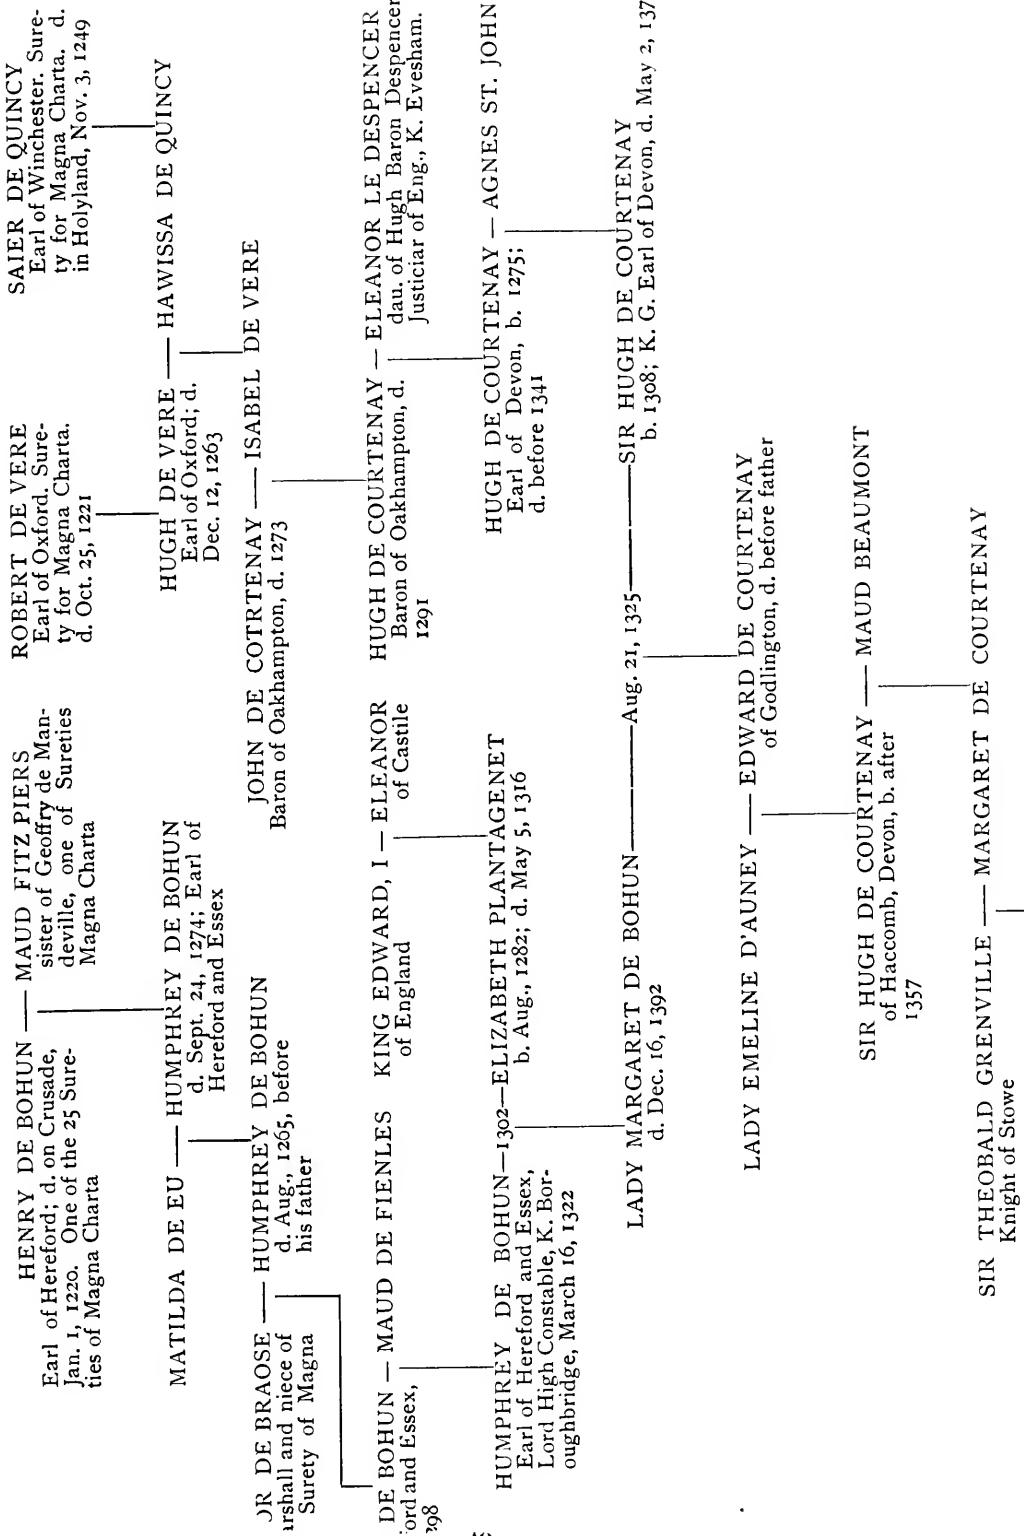

All men honor these aristocrats whose seals are on the Great Charter, as well as the humbler God-fearing men who signed the compact, these all builded better than they knew. If you ever boast the possession of their blood, see that it may be said of you, (though in a narrower field), you too have lived to honor God, and tried to bless mankind.

I will insert a chart showing the line of descent from the Barons of Runnemede.

I have not asked for portraits or illustrations, but shall be glad to receive any to extra illustrate my own copy with pictures of my kindred, and I will also be glad to have corrections and additions.

I give you the result of my labors knowing that there are errors and believing they will be overlooked.

A handwritten signature in cursive script, appearing to read "James N. Greene". The signature is fluid and somewhat stylized, with the "J" and "N" being particularly prominent.

THE GREENE FAMILY OF PLYMOUTH COLONY.

1. WILLIAM¹ GREENE came to Plymouth in the seventeenth century, but no record of his sailing, arrival or previous residence has been found; his name is not among those of passengers or early emigrants, no record of his admission as a freeman appears, and no mention is made of him by Farmer or Savage; even Amos Otis, the genealogist of Barnstable, seems to have been ignorant of his existence, for, in his notice of the marriage of the son, William Greene (1684-1756), and sketch of that family, Otis expresses his belief that the family ancestor was James Greene of Charlestown, the freeman of 1647; this may have been because James, the son of the latter, came to Barnstable about 1710, and passed the latter years of his life there, where he died about 1731. Otis also supposes Isaac Greene of Barnstable, who removed to Falmouth in the same county, to be a connection of the same family. The idea that William Greene of Barnstable was a descendant of James, has been generally adopted by others, and the writer was led to adopt it, with the rest, and in March, 1867, published it so, in a foot note on page 67 of the Todd Genealogy. At that time, while unable to connect with that line, I could not disprove it, and awaited proof or contradiction.

As opportunity presented, I have worked out every line of the family of James without finding any descendant who could possibly be the progenitor of this family. I also followed out the lines of each of the Greene families of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and reached the conclusion that there was no connection between William and any of these. In 1886, I endeavored through a query in the N. E. Hist. & Gen. Register, to learn William Greene's parentage, without success, and in 1898 I had about reached my present conclusions, and printed a suggestion of the line in the N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record, Vol. xxx, page 54, hoping that some one would corroborate or refute.

The discovery later of the marriage and death of the first William Greene on the records, seemed to establish the fact that he was the first of this family here, and founder of the Greene family of Plymouth Colony.

Otis also confuses the name with Groom, a mistake one familiar with old manuscripts should not have made; the error undoubtedly arose from the similarity between the reversed "e" and an "o." I have seen Desire Greene on the records in the old manuscript, which seemed to be Dosiro Groom, but when the style is understood it is plain. One thing is conclusively established by it: this is the presence of a final "e," otherwise it might have been mistaken for Groon but never for Groom. The final "e" was dropped in the third generation, some have now resumed it.

Among the various family genealogies published, frequent reference has been made to other families of the name, but I find no allusion to the Plymouth or Falmouth families among these. I believe Otis errs in supposing there is any connection between the families of William of Barnstable and Isaac of Falmouth, but he was nearer the time and place and may be right.

The name of the emigrant ancestor, William Greene, is identical with that of one of the merchant adventurers, who raised the stock to begin and supply the Plymouth plantation, though he was out of the management at the time the leading men of the colony bought out the rights of the original promoters, in November, 1626. These adventurers were mostly from London, as Arber tells us: "some gentlemen, some merchants, some handcraftsmen; some adventuring great sums, some small, as their estates and affection served." Captain John Smith speaks of the great losses sustained in the enterprise; some have supposed these reached near or quite £7000. Many got out before, and the remainder sold out for a gross sum, amounting to two hundred pounds sterling each. Those who had retired before, like William Greene, Edward Pickering and Thomas Weston, probably lost their entire investment. What more natural than that such an one, or the children of a man who had been sufficiently interested in the settlement to invest and lose his money in the venture, should follow the settlers to the colony; certainly Timothy Hatherly and Thomas Weston did, why not the son of William Greene or Greene himself? Edward Arber gives the names of Thomas Andrews, Thomas Goffe, John Pocock, John Russell, Samuel Sharp and John White, who were afterwards interested in the Massachusetts Company. We know that William Collier, one of the London Company, became one of the leading men in Plymouth Colony.

William¹ Greene seems to have been broken in health, if not in resources; we do not know how soon after his arrival, but he became a helpless invalid at the last. This may explain his want of prominence, and be the reason for the ignorance concerning him which we have mentioned.

William Greene married, after coming to New England and as early as 1683, into a family that stood among the best in the colony; his wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Nathaniel and Sarah (Walker) Warren, born 15 September, 1654; she survived her husband, living until 1690 or later.

Nathaniel² Warren was among the earliest sons born to the Pilgrims in the year 1624. He was prominent in the colonies and among other positions held by him, was representative in the General Court, every year but two, from 1657 to 1665. He died two years after, between July 16 and Oct. 21, 1667. Sarah Walker, whom he married November 19, 1645, survived until November 24, 1700; she was the watchful nurse and faithful friend of William Greene during his long sickness; for this reason, if for no other, she should be ever remembered and honored by their descendants. She was a grand-daughter of Jane, wife of William Collier of Duxbury,* as we learn from her petition June 11, 1653, "on behalf of her grandchild Sara, wife of Nathaniel Warren;" her husband was living at this time, but did not join in the petition; so I conclude Sarah Walker may not have been his grandchild; again, the daughters of William and Jane Collier were: i. Sarah, who married Love Brewster; ii. Rebecca married Job Cole; iii. Mary married Gov. Thos. Prence, and iv. Elizabeth, who married Constant Southworth. Sarah Walker was daughter to neither of these. Jane Collier came with her husband about 1633; the daughters were married here, some in 1634, and others soon after; consequently they were born before 1620 and in England. This disposes of the possibility of the Sarah Walker, who came "from London in 1643, aged 17," being her child, for in 1626, when the latter was born, Jane had been for some time the wife of William Collier. We are left to suppose Jane Collier had been married before (possibly to a Walker), and her child by such marriage was the parent of Sarah who married Nathaniel Warren in 1645. It is not improbable that the Colliers, the Warrens and Greene were known to each other in England. We know the two families came from London, and suppose he was from the same place. Among the descendants of William Greene, 1488, of Widdington Hall, there are many places to fit in such an one, among the younger sons whose names are omitted from the printed charts, but we will stick to facts.

* Mayflower Descendant, ii. 64, and iii. 3.

The oldest of the records, called the "Plimouth Town Book" for births, marriages and burials, has this entry on page 9: "William Green son to William Gren and Elizabeth his wife was born the 24th of April 1684." The earliest mention of a William Greene which I have found is 1673.

We know Richard Warren, of the Mayflower, father of Nathaniel, was not son of Christopher, of the pedigree published by the Harleian Society, Devonshire Visitation, 1620. We also know that his wife, Elizabeth, who followed him with their daughters on the "Ann," in 1623, was not daughter of Ivat, or widow of Marsh, as often published; and we have Bradford's word that Richard Warren came from London. With this, for the present, we must be satisfied.

William¹ Greene died soon after the birth of his only child, on the seventh of October, 1685. His wife survived, but how long we cannot say, for we have not found any record of her later than five years afterwards.

2. WILLIAM² GREENE, Jr., born in Plymouth, as before stated, April 24, 1684, was fatherless before he was a year and a half old, and an orphan in his childhood. Being the only one of his name, with no relations in this country except his mother's family, I take it he was dependent on his maternal grandmother, who had been his father's friend; she survived until November, 1700. At this time he was sixteen years of age. It was no unusual thing for a youth to be left to depend on himself, two centuries ago, in New England. The school, though severe, has been a good one for very many. He seems to have done as well as the average; certainly nothing has been reported to his discredit. He lived in Barnstable, and was married, probably by Ephraim Little, the pastor, in 1709 (two dates being given, March 25 and April 9), to Desire, daughter of John Bacon, Esq., an influential man in one of the best families on the Cape. Desire Bacon was born March 15, 1688 or 1689. Her mother was Mary, daughter of Captain John Hawes, of Yarmouth, who died March 5, 1725 or 1726, aged 61 years. Capt. Hawes died Nov. 11, 1701, in consequence of an amputation, as we learn from the "Wast Book" of Col. Gorham, but we are not told why the amputation was necessary. Mary (Hawes) Bacon's mother, Desire, was daughter of Capt. John Gorham, commander of the Barnstable company, and mortally wounded in the Great Swamp Fight, Narraganset, in King Philip's War. Capt. Gorham's wife, Desire, was the eldest child of Pilgrim John Howland and Elizabeth Tilley, who came with her parents on the Mayflower. On Sept. 9, 1726, John Bacon married second, Madam Sarah Warren of Plymouth. She was Sarah, daughter of Edward Doty, Jr., and widow of James Warren (1665-1715), who was brother of Elizabeth (Warren) Greene, and consequently aunt to William Greene, her husband's son-in-law. Judge Bacon died Aug. 20, 1731, in the sixty-seventh year of his age. He left a large estate, which was divided among his children. The house in which William and Desire lived, a high single house, was a gift from her father, and adjoined his grounds on the west. This house was afterwards the residence of Lot Thatcher, but has long since disappeared.

Desire, wife of William Greene, died December 29, 1730, aged 41; and he married second, September 1, 1731, Mary Fuller, granddaughter of Samuel, who was of the Mayflower company; she survived him until the 23d of October following his decease, which occurred "January 28, 1756, aged over seventy," according to the record, but to be accurate, seventy-one years, nine months and four days.

The children of William and Desire (Bacon) Greene were:

3. i. MARY³ b. March 8, 1710; bapt. Sept. 5, 1725.
4. ii. WARREN, b. June 9, 1712.
5. iii. DESIRE, b. Oct. 24, 1718.
6. iv. WILLIAM, b. July 17, 1721.
7. v. SARAH, b. Dec. 27, 1723.
8. vi. JOHN, b. April 12, 1726.
9. vii. JAMES, b. Sept. 17, 1728.

3. MARY³ GREEN (William,² *William*¹) was born March 8, 1710, which birth does not appear in Otis, who however gives "Mary baptized September 5, 1725." There has been much controversy as to whether she was the Mary Green who married, December 11, 1760, Thomas Smith of East Haddam. This last Mary Green came from Middle Haddam to the Church at Millington, East Haddam, and died January 2, 1810, aged 75, 7, 2, if correct, she was born May 30, 1734, and could not have been this Mary. Her husband died September 17, 1821, aged 83, which would make him her junior. They had children, one of whom, Benjamin, was born November 16, 1761, and was wounded at Brandywine, 1777, as a soldier in the Revolution; he was only a boy then. They had other children, the last being twins, born in 1772. Some of the descendants of Warren Green insist that their ancestress, Sarah, was sister of this Mary (Green) Smith, but I find no such birth or baptism among Warren's children. The late Dr. D. Williams Patterson at one time thought she was a child of *William*² Green and his second wife, after 1731; when this marriage took place he was 47 and his wife 46. I am unable to decide where her true place is, but she was evidently of this family.

4. WARREN³ GREEN (William,² *William*¹), born June 9, 1712, married March 14, 1734, Nancy Paine of Eastham. They had one child born at that place, January 14, 1735, called after her grandmother, Desire. He removed to Middle Haddam, Connecticut, and later to Middletown. The Middletown records give his wife's name as Mary, and the family claim that his marriage was to Mary Paine, and not Nancy. The names of the children on the Middletown records are Bathsheba, Sarah and Warren, Jr. He was living in the immediate neighborhood of the church at Middle Haddam,

I should say, from the fact that two of these were baptized on the very day of their birth; the birth does not appear in case of Elizabeth, Benjamin and Hannah, but the church records have the baptisms. The tradition that he and his wife were buried at Saybrook has not been confirmed. In May, 1761, Warren Green was appointed Ensign of the 14th Company, Sixth Regiment, Connecticut Militia. I do not know if he accepted or served. Mary Green, mentioned before, may belong among his children, but no record appears. His children, as entered on town and church records, were:

10. i. DESIRE,⁴ b. in Eastham, Mass., Jan. 14, 1735; m. Philip Goff.
11. ii. ELIZABETH, bapt. in Middle Haddam, Conn., July 5, 1742.
12. iii. BATHSHEBA, b. and bapt. in Middletown, Oct. 23, 1743; m. Stephen Hosmer Caswell, Oct. 3, 1763.
13. iv. SARAH, b. and bapt. in Middletown, Sept. 22, 1745; m. David Dimock, Oct. 5, 1767.
14. v. WARREN, b. Aug. 3, bapt. Sept. 6, 1747, in Middletown; m. Lucy Brainerd.
15. vi. BENJAMIN, bapt. July 2, 1749.
16. vii. HANNAH, bapt. Oct. 6, 1751.
6. WILLIAM³ GREEN (William,² William¹), removed to Chatham, Middle Haddam Society, July 25, 1742, that being the date of dismission from church at Barnstable to church at Middletown, hence I conclude he was not the man who married Mary Conant at Barnstable in October, 1745. He married at Middletown, June 28, 1750, Marcy Knowles; she had two children and died June 29, 1768, aged 38. He married second, January 25, 1770, Elizabeth Young of Middle Haddam. She also had two children. He died of consumption, August 15, 1775, aged 53. His widow died of smallpox, February 24, 1778. The following appear on the Middletown records:
 17. i. MARCY GREEN,⁴ b. July 12, 1751; d. Aug. 12, 1752.
 18. ii. EUNICE GREEN, b. Jan. 7, 1753.
 19. iii. WILLIAM GREEN, JR., b. March 8, 1771.
 20. iv. ENOCH GREEN, b. May 18, 1772.
8. JOHN³ GREEN (William,² William¹). I have sometimes thought he came to Middletown, as did his two older brothers, but I am not prepared to say the John, Jr., on the records, there, married to Rachel Higgins, November 23, 1758, who had sons Joel and John Green was this man. William⁴ and Enoch,⁴ two sons of William³ Green, were brought up by their uncle, Captain James Green, at East Haddam; there was also constant intercourse between the families of Warren³ and James,³ but I cannot learn of any between the latter and John or any of his family.
9. JAMES³ GREEN (William,² William¹), the youngest child, lost his mother at two years of age. His father married again, before James was three years old. When he was fourteen his older brothers removed to Connecticut. There is no way of determining exactly when he followed them, but he bought land in East Haddam, Conn., in 1758, before he was thirty, and had married there four years before. Amos Otis, in his Barnstable Family History, says he "was a blacksmith and a captain in the French War."

That he was in that war all admit, but in what regiment or capacity does not appear.

When Sir Wm. Pepperell sailed for Cape Breton with 3,500 men, James Green was in his seventeenth year; the next year, 1746, was the expedition against Canada. Col. John Winslow raised 2,000 men among his neighbors, 1755, to march against Nova Scotia, and Fort Beau Sejour was taken and Grand Pré. Winslow was in command until 1757. At this time Green may have been in Connecticut. He was always a firm friend of Joseph Spencer of East Haddam, who was a captain at Louisburgh, Major of the second of four regiments raised by Connecticut in 1657 for the war, and Lieutenant Colonel of same in 1759-60, when the province sent 5,000 men. There were but two regiments equipped in 1761, and Spencer did not go, but Green may have served, for ten years later, passing over the grades of Quarter Master and Cornet, the legislature of the province commissioned him lieutenant of the troop in Spencer's regiment. This indicates that he was recognized as a man of military experience, or he would not have been selected at the age of 42 for so important a command. The legislators and officials, in speaking of the mounted militia, called them "gentlemen of the Horse" in contradistinction to the "men of the train-bands;" and in rank, each grade of the former, commissioned or non-commissioned, was equal to the next higher in the latter, so that as lieutenant of the troop he ranked with captain of foot.

James Green married, February 13, 1754, Ruth Marshall, who was born at Freetown, Massachusetts, April 1, 1737; she was the daughter of John, born at Windsor, Connecticut, April 3, 1701, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Lieutenant Job Winslow, about January, 1726. As his family has never been printed correctly, I will enumerate the children here: 1. Benjamin, 19 October, 1726; 2. Mary, 4 December, 1727; 3. John, 19 September, 1730; 4. William, 5 June, 1733; 5. Susannah, 19 March, 1734, died young; 6. Ruth, 1 April, 1737; 7. Charity, 6 November, 1738; 8. Elizabeth, 9 February, 1741; 9. Thomas, 17 May, 1744. Job Winslow was son of Kenelm, who was a brother of Gov. Edward Winslow of Plymouth Colony.

John Marshall was son of Thomas (1664-1735) and Mary Drake. He was son of Captain Samuel Marshall, who commanded the Windsor Company in the Great Swamp fight, Narragansett, King Philip's War, where he was killed at the head of his troops, Dec. 19, 1675.

Mary Drake's ancestry has been published quite full in Vol. XXVII, page 176, New York Genealogical & Biographical Record; her mother was Mary, daughter of Henry Woleott, the Magistrate of Connecticut Colony.

James³ Green had a forge and blacksmith shop at Moodus Landing, East Haddam, and was also licensed to keep the public house called the "Smiths Arms," which stood at the top of the terrace facing the Connecticut River.

The writer contributed sketches, many years ago, in the local paper, in which was set forth James Green's many purchases of real estate, and the civil offices held by him; as these have been published as Chapters II. and XVI. in "Old Chimney Stacks of East Haddam," N. Y., 1887, we will not repeat, but will take up his military services during the War for Independence.

James Green was commissioned, March, 1774, by the Provincial Assembly, Captain of the First Troop of the Twelfth Regiment. When the companies of foot were called on to march, at the time of the Lexington alarm, the troops of Horse attached to the same regiment were ordered to wait for further notice. In May, 1776, the troops of Horse were detached and consolidated into five regiments; of these the second and fourth were composed of troops located east of the Connecticut River, and the other three on the west. William Hillhouse, an experienced soldier, a member of the Assembly over fifty years, and later for three years in Congress under the Confederacy, was appointed Major of the Second Regiment but declined, and the office was not filled for some time. Captain Green, being senior in rank, would have commanded the Regiment, if called for separate service, but the odd and even numbered regiments were usually called together on the same service.

In July, 1776, the first, third and fifth regiments of Horse were ordered to Washington's Army, at New York. They have been greatly criticised, I may say ridiculed, but the fault was not altogether theirs; the horses were not wanted, and they objected to being dismounted, hence they were discharged July 17, 1776, and returned to their homes. The special consideration and privileges of the cavalry have been alluded to before, hence they considered that they were reduced in rank, when dismounted. Their claim however prevailed, though they yielded at the time, for afterwards, during the war, every man in the cavalry ranked and received the pay of the next higher grade.

Washington soon after appealed again to Gov. Jonathan Trumbull for immediate reinforcements, and September 5th, the two regiments of Horse, which had not before been out of the State, but had been called to New London in August, were ordered to Washington's Army. These were the Second and Fourth Regiments of Light Horse.

Major Ebenezer Backus, of the Fourth, was the only field officer; there were seven troops; three of these were from the Second, the commanding officers being: Captain James Green, Elijah Hyde, Jr., and Andrew Lathrop. Washington welcomed their arrival, and when their service was ended in November, they were "dismissed with the General's hearty thanks for their faithful services, and the cheerfulness and alacrity they have shown upon all occasions."

Their service at this time was mainly in Westchester County, N. Y., and they were present at the battle of White Plains, when the following incident occurred, which was told me by my grandfather, who was in his twelfth year at the time his father was on this tour of duty. On the morning of October 28th, 1776, Washington, Lee, Heath and other officers were reconnoitering a height, with a view to fortifying, when the Light Horse from the outposts reported the advance of the enemy. Captain Green, failing to find the General at Headquarters, himself rode over to communicate the news, to which Washington answering replied: "Yes, I know, yonder." "No, General, here," said Green. "Ah!" said the General, turning in the direction indicated. "Gentlemen, we have other business than reconnoitering," said Washington, and after dismissing the other officers to their commands, he hastened back to Headquarters.

When the Light Horse returned to Connecticut, in November, they found they were needed in Rhode Island, where Gen. Joseph Spencer was in command, and the British fleet was expected. In December, the Assembly ordered Major Backus to be paid for the service of the men who accompanied him to New York in September and to Rhode Island in December, 1776. It is reasonable to conclude, that Green and the East Haddam troop would be among the first to respond to a call, to assist their friend and neighbor, Spencer.

In the Spring of 1777, Burgoyne planned his invasion from Canada, Sir Henry Clinton was to come up the Hudson and form a junction by which the troublesome New England Colonies would be cut off; New York was to be occupied by the invaders and the Rebellion to be ended. The plan was good; the South would never have succeeded without the East; there could be no successful co-operation between the colonies if New York and the Hudson River were held by an enemy, especially as there was no fleet at their command. The plan failed, for Clinton did not join Burgoyne.

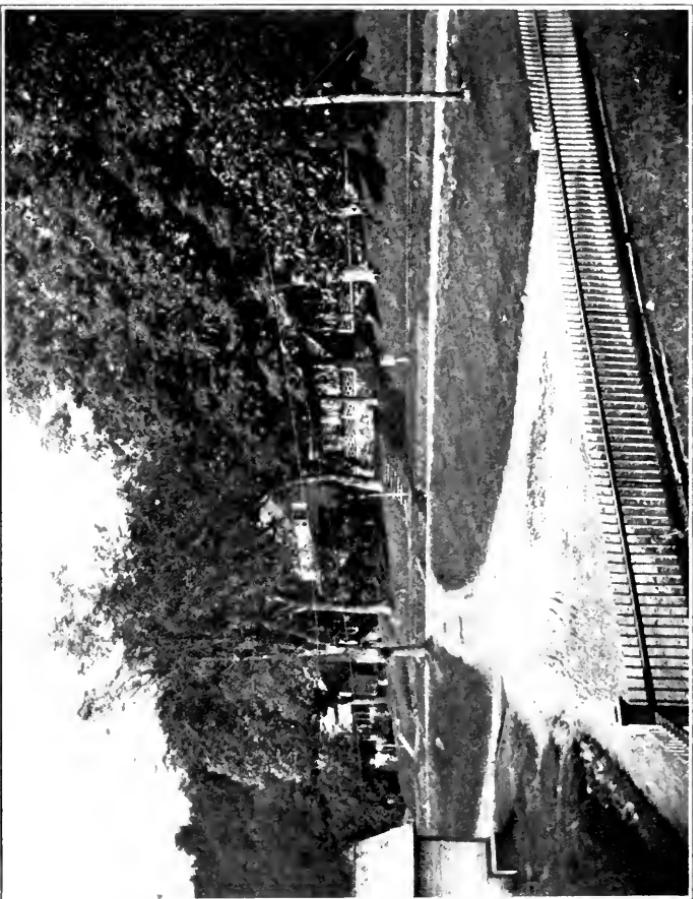

General Schuyler planned the campaign as Commander of the Northern Department; he called on Washington, who crippled his own army to reinforce him; he urged the Governors of Massachusetts and Connecticut to hasten such of their militia as could be spared; then Schuyler was relieved of his command and superseded by General Horatio Gates. This change might have proved disastrous, but the presence of efficient officers, and the reinforcements, brought success.

Connecticut sent the regiments of Cooke and Latimer, and the battalion of Light Horse, under Major Hyde; the latter may have been the troop of Captain Green alone, as only the names of these two officers, Major Hyde and Captain Green, appear on the return, and though the former might accompany a single troop of his regiment, the latter would hardly have gone without his own command.

Captain James Green was there, and through all the fighting, Bemis Heights (September 19th), Stillwater (October 7th), and surrender of the British Army, under General Burgoyne (October 16th), which proved the turning point of the conflict. England from that day began to consider independence possible: France and Spain then talked of recognition; the Colonies took courage and became hopeful. It was a proud day for those who participated, and among these the militia from Connecticut had their share in the suffering and success.

From this time, the calls on the militia of the States were not so frequent; though Connecticut (lying between the British posts at Rhode Island and New York) was exposed to the English navy along the Sound, and liable to invasions over the western border, the most noticeable being Tryon's raids to Danbury and New Haven, and Arnold's raid to New London.

There were also calls to Rhode Island, during Spencer's command, and in 1778, when Spencer marched the Connecticut militia to support Sullivan, his successor. The mounted men were also called on for escort and guard duty, and eleven of Captain Green's troop were detached to serve in the Continental Army from October, 1779, to January 15, 1780, though it does not appear who went in command.

I have elsewhere mentioned the men from this town who were in the service during the war, but there was one name I will repeat who came to teach in the school of this district, and lived during the winter of 1773-4 in the family of Captain Green. He taught in the little red school, which is still preserved, and among his pupils were James, William, Benjamin, Richard and Ann of this household; while Hannah Green, just his age, and Ruth, a little younger, were his companions after school hours. Hannah never ceased to remember and often spoke of the "sprightly, intelligent, kind, and withal so handsome" Nathan Hale. William was a boy of thirteen when attending his school and thrown into such close companionship, and soon after the execution of his former teacher, he went into the army and never returned; he died on the prison ship in the Wallabout. Hannah's first husband marched with Spencer in 1775, and her second husband commanded a Company in Josiah Smiths regiment at the battle of Long Island. Little Nancy afterward married a son of Gen. Spencer. In fact, the atmosphere of this home was true to the cause of liberty.

James Green was selectman, and often moderator of town meetings, for many years. He was chairman of the board to make the town's quota for troops, and held many other offices named elsewhere. He held his rank in the militia through the war. James Green was chosen first postmaster when the government was established. He died March 11, 1809; and his widow died November 27, 1816. They were both buried in the Riverside Cemetery. Their children, all born in East Haddam, and all baptized at the First Orthodox Church, were as follows:

21. i. HANNAH,⁴ b. March 14, 1755; d. July 2, 1833.
22. ii. RUTH, b. May 12, 1756; d. Jan. 21, 1791.
23. iii. JAMES, b. April 8, 1758; lost at sea, about Dec., 1784.
24. iv. WILLIAM, b. Aug. 26, 1760; d. in the War for Independence.
25. v. BENJAMIN, b. Aug. 31, 1762; d. July 31, 1828.
26. vi. RICHARD, b. March 10, 1765; d. Feb. 8, 1848.
27. vii. ANN, b. Feb. 13, 1768; d. Nov. 11, 1855.
28. viii. TIMOTHY, b. Aug. 31, 1771; d. March 19, 1775.
29. ix. OLIVER, b. Aug. 16, 1773; d. Jan. 2, 1848.
30. x. TIMOTHY, b. July 3, 1776; d. June 15, 1853.
31. xi. WILSON, b. July 10, 1780; d. at sea, in 1801.

Of the above, Hannah,⁴ Benjamin, Richard, Ann, Oliver and Timothy left descendants. William Greene, the Plymouth emigrant ancestor, has descendants, of the sixth to ninth generations, living in various States, few having remained in Connecticut, and none in Plymouth Colony.

NOTES TO THIRD GENERATION.

Page 7, Note to No. 6. William³ Green and his second wife Elizabeth Young, who was b. Aug. 26, 1733. Her descent was from John¹ Young of Eastham, Mass., and Abigail, his wife, m. Dec. 13, 1648; she was dau. of Henry Howland, brother of John, who came on The Mayflower.

Robert² Young (John¹), b. Aug., 1667; m. May 22, 1694, Joanna, dau. of Samuel and Lydia (Doane) Hicks of Eastham and Barnstable, who were m. in 1645. Samuel was son of Robert Hicks and Margaret Winslow. Lydia was dau. of John and Abigail Doane. Samuel Hicks m. Lydia Doane, Sept. 14, 1645. Samuel Hicks was Rep. 1649; John Doane was Assistant and Deacon.

Robert³ Young, b. Dec. 11, 1696; m. Elizabeth, b. July 11, 1698, dau. of Isaac and Apphia (Freeman) Pepper, m. Eastham, Oct. 7, 1685. She was dau. of Samuel Freeman, stepson of Gov. Prencé; he m. May 12, 1658, Mercy, dau. of Constant and Elizabeth (dau. of Wm. Collier) Southworth, who were parents of Apphia Freeman, b. Jan. 1, 1667.

Page 8 Reprint, line 17. The appointment of James Green as Lieutenant of troop in Jos. Spencer's 12th Regiment, was made by the legislature, May, 1771; he succeeded John Chamberlain, who was ensign of the 5th company of the regiment which went to Havana in 1762, and lost forty of its ninety men.

War was declared March 29, 1744, and peace proclaimed Feb. 10, 1763. In connection with the announcement that Green had served, these dates may be interesting:

- 1745. Peperil sailed for Cape Breton.
- 1746. Expedition against Canada.
- 1748. Treaty of Aix la Chapelle. 1754. French War begins.
- 1755-1757. Col. Jno. Winslow in command, Mass.
- 1755. Lyman of Conn. at Crown Point.
- 1758. Louisburgh taken. Connecticut's quota four regiments.
- 1759. Quebec taken. Four regiments from Connecticut.
- 1760. Amherst in Canada. Four regiments from Connecticut.
- 1761. Spain joins France.
- 1762. Expedition against Cuba. Moro stormed and Havana capitulated.

Green was in Connecticut as early as 1653. That Colony furnished 5,000 men for the army against Quebec, and about the same every year from 1758-61, about half as many in the last year of the war.

Page 8, ten lines from bottom. In Connecticut Early Wills, Sept. 14, 1677, is will of Deacon John Moore. He mentions son John and four daughters, to wit.: Hannah, wife of John Drake (m. Nov. 30, 1648); Elizabeth, wife of Nathaniel Loomis (m. Nov., 1653); Abigail, wife of Thomas Bissell (m. Oct., 1655), and Mindwell, wife of Nathaniel Bissell (m. Sept., 1662). This settles a matter which has long been in confusion.

Note, foot of page 8. James Green made purchases of real estate in East Haddam, as follows:

Page 8, Line 17. James Green was commissioned by the Assembly of Connecticut, lieutenant of the first troop in Spencer's 12th Regiment, 1771. John Chamberlain was made captain at the same time, Nathaniel Clark, cornet, and Elijah Metcalf quarter-master. In 1774 these appointments were made: James Green, captain; Jonathan Deming, lieutenant; Elijah Metcalf, cornet; Daniel Bulkeley, quarter-master. May, 1734, when East Haddam was made a town, a petition was presented to authorize a troop, this was granted in October, and included Colchester and Hebron in its district. After May, 1776 the cavalry were organized into a regiment of five battalions; the latter acted separately each under its own major. In September, 1776, at the request of Washington, Gov. Trumbull sent the Second and Fourth Regiments to New York, one major (Ebenezer Backus), seven captains (Samuel Hall, Joseph Loomis, Amasa Kayes and Isaac Sergeant, of the Fourth; James Green, Elijah Hyde and Andrew Lathrop of the Second Regiment). They were dismissed Nov. 2 when R. H. Garrison, A. D. C. for Gen. Washington, wrote to Gov. Trumbull:—"In respect to the Light Horsemen, under Maj. Backus he issued an order for their discharge yesterday morning, on the arrival of others under Maj. Sheldon. And I am charged in a particular manner to notify you that their conduct has been extremely good, and the services they have rendered of great advantage to this country. Sensible of this, as a tribute due to their merit, his Excellency was pleased to make them a return of his thanks in General Orders of yesterday."

This order reads: "A relief having come for the Light Horse under Maj. Backus, that corps is now dismissed with the General's hearty thanks for their faithful services and the cheerfulness and alacrity they have shown upon all occasions." This was after the battle of White Plains.

- 65 iii. Sophia Indiana Greene, b. Jan. 11, 1798.

20. ENOCH⁴ GREEN (William,³ William,² William¹), b. May 8, 1772. He came with his brother to East Haddam and was brought up by Capt. James Green. He returned to Middletown afterwards, where he was a member of the Second Congregational Church, and Oct. 13, 1788, subscribed to an agreement to support the ministry in that church. I have heard he removed to the vicinity of Whitestone, N. Y., afterwards.

21. HANNAH⁴ GREEN (James,³ William,² William¹), b. March 14, 1755; bap. April 11, 1773, East Haddam, Conn.; m. Joseph Hungerford. He went to Boston, 1775, on the Lexington Alarm. She m. (2) Capt. David Pierson from Southampton, L. I., who commanded a company in Col. Josiah Smith's 1st L. I. Regt., at the battle of Long Island, Aug., 1776. She lived at East Haddam the last of her life and d. July 2, 1833. She had two children both by first husband:

- 66 i. Hannah⁵ Hungerford, b. July 13, 1778.
- 67 ii. Joseph Hungerford, b. 1781; never m.; d. Aug. 12, 1816, aet. 35.

23. JAMES⁴ GREEN, JR. (James,³ William,² William¹), b. April 8, 1758; m. Mary Gelston, dau. of Deac. Maltby and Mary Gelston of Bridgehampton, L. I. She was b. July 3, 1758. He was a sea captain and d. at sea, Dec., 1784. Her elder sister Catharine was wife of Gov. De Witt Clinton, Elizabeth was the first wife of David Pierson who m. (21) Hannah⁴ Green above. The father, Maltby Gelston, was b. March 20, 1723; m. Mary, dau. of Dr. Thos. and Mary (Livingston) Jones, N. Y. - i. Almyra⁵ Tinker, m. Henry White.
- ii. Temperance Tinker, unm.
- iii. Indiana Tinker, b. April 6, 1771; m. Oct. 26, 1791, William Green, 4th.

* Indiana Green Burr had: Henry A., Gideon and Clarissa Ann Burr; her second husband d. Oct. 18, 1827, aged 76 years.

of Court of Common Pleas, Suffolk Co., N. Y. When the British overran Long Island, Deac. Maltby Gelston fled to East Haddam, and occupied a house on the river bank, south of the present Watrous and near the Boss Hubbard place; part of the foundation was visible some years since. It was afterward occupied by Mrs. John Marshall (who was Elizabeth Winslow) and her dau. Ruth. The foundation has now fallen into the river with the ground about it.

24. WILLIAM⁴ GREEN (James,³ William,² William¹), b. Aug. 26, 1760; bap. March 14, 1773. Went into the navy, when young, during the war of Independence. He never returned and it was reported to his family that he was drowned trying to escape from the prison ship in Wallabought Bay, N. Y. Harbor. The Conn. ship-of-war, Oliver Cromwell, was ordered Dec. 5, 1777, to enlist crews with all speed, under the rules of the Continental Congress. Timothy Parker was made captain. She was built at Saybrook, 1775. April 20, 1778, Parker reported prizes taken, the Cyrus, 16 guns, the Admiral Keppel, 18 guns. In his report he speaks of the merit of his officers in action, "keeping such inexperienced young boys (as many of them were) to their quarters, without the show of fear or noise or confusion." Hence William then in his 18th year was not the only boy.

In a list* of prisoners committed to Forton prison, Eng., Oct. 13, 1777, appears the name "William Green, ship Oliver Cromwell." Another entry, same name, without vessel, later. The History of New London, says, "the crew were released Aug., 1779, they had been on prison ships Jersey and Good Hope." Webb's statement published in the N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record,† says: "The Cromwell was not captured until 1781." The list of Prison Ship Martyrs also has his name. He may have been in England as a prisoner and sent back for exchange or other reasons.

He had the example of his father who had gone to the war and his teacher, Nathan Hale, the martyr, who lived with them and was dead.

26. RICHARD⁴ GREEN (James,³ William,² William¹), b. March 10, 1765, at East Haddam; bap. March 14, 1773; m. May 1, 1803, Sally Webb,* of Saybrook (now Chester), Conn. After his marriage he moved into the Jehiel Tinker homestead, which he bought Sept. 23, 1803, for $1,015.00 from the heirs Henry and Almyra White, Temperance Tinker and Indiana Green. This place containing 80 rods, is described in the deed as at Moodus Landing, between Thomas Marshall, Joseph Atwood and Elijah Atwood. It was beautifully situated at the top of the terraces on the upper road, facing the river, a double colonial house, in which Richard Green lived until his death, and there all of his children were born. It was the second house south of Captain James Green's house where he was born. The south wing of Maplewood Seminary, now being taken down, is remembered as it stood between Eliphalet Bulkeley and Aunt Piersons. Richard Green was a merchant and ship owner until he retired from business in 1814, when he furnished the capital for the new firm "R. and T. Green," managed by his younger brother Timothy. He was Tithing man, constable, surveyor of highways, selectman, and many times moderator of town meetings. In 1816 he was appointed to purchase land for the town. He was captain of the East Haddam South Company, 25th Regiment Conn. Militia, and in that capacity marched his company in 1812 on an alarm to New London. This was in the second war with England.

Capt. and Mrs. Green always attended the First Church in East Haddam, which was then called Uptown, now Little Haddam. Captain Green d. at his home in East Haddam, Feb. 8, 1848, act. nearly 83 years.  Her name my mother bore,
 And it hath a holier sweetness
 Than ought it wore before."

"She lives and smiles before me,
 My gentle bright eyed child;
 With her winning smiles and glances
 So tender and so mild.
 May the name bring spells of beauty
 To her spirit and her brow,
 For in mingled love and duty
 I crown her with it now."

THIRD GENERATION IN THE FEMALE LINES.

3. MARY³ GREENE (William,² William¹), b. March 8, 1710; bap. Sept. 5, 1725; m. May 4, 1736, as his second wife, Barnabas Barker,* son of John and Ann Williams Barker of Scituate, Mass.; his first wife was Hannah Turner. Barnabas d. 1763. Mary Barker was not living at the time of the settlement of her father's estate, March, 1756. Children:

* My attention was called to the settlement of the estate of William² Greene, by Mrs. William H. McCartney, and I sent for a copy of the probate, which appears below in the Appendix. Since they are of the family I determined to add the descendants of 3 Mary³ Greene and 7 Sarah³ Greene and should be glad to add 5 Desire³ Greene at the end of the Sixth Generation which was already printed. In the Seventh Generation all will have their regular places and be numbered consecutively, I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to Dr. Barker Newhall's genealogy. He says, however, that Barnabas Barker, m. (2) Mary Neal, and names the children, all of whom except William and the first Lucy are named through their mother Mary Barker, deceased, as heirs in the estate of William² Greene.

506 i. William⁴ Barker, bap. May 1, 1737.
 507 ii. Mercy Barker, bap. May 7, 1738.

188. MRS. RICHARD HENRY GREENE'S ancestry which should have been a note on page 48.

The scope of this work has expanded as it progressed. The author has endeavored to deal fairly and the same with all the members of the family and where possible to give the parentage or ancestry of their wives and husbands. In his own case the Bacon, Mayo, Hawes, Gorham and Howland families are sufficiently printed in Otis' Barnstable Families, Freeman's Cape Cod, etc.; the Marshall and Wilton families, in Marshall's Ancestry of Grant; Drake, in Vol. XXVII, N. Y. Genealogical Record; Winslow, in Dr. Holton's Winslow Memorial; Webb, in Wilcoxsen, Meigs and Richard Webb; and the maternal lines Todd, Dodge, Duffie, Roosevelt and Herring families were published by himself in 1867; Van Der Bilt is shown in Early Settlers of Kings Co., and Bogart, in N. Y. and N. Eng. Families. It was unnecessary therefore to repeat these family histories. In the case of Mrs. Greene, neé Munson, her line to the first of the name in America is in the Munson Genealogy, II, 751, etc., only the note furnished by the present author, instead of Daniel and Rebecca (Johnson) Sperry, should read: Amos and Susanna (Lines) Sperry. Every branch of her family comes from New England, largely New Haven Colony, to wit.: Thomas Munson, William Bradley, Thomas Mix, Benjamin Wilmot, John Plume, Sylvester Baldwin, Thomas Beach, Richard Platt, David Atwater, Richard Mansfield, Henry Glover, Samuel Nettleton, John Alsopp, Richard Sperry, Ralph Lines, Thomas Dickerman, Joseph Peck, John Cooper, John Thompson, George Alcocke, Richard Palsgrave, Nicholas Street, Roger Alling, John Brockett, Abraham Doolittle, Roger Prichard, Samuel Hotchkiss, John Winston, Thomas Tuttle, Richard Horton, Richard Olmstead, Thomas Benedict, Francis Bell, Joseph Crane, Robert Kitchell, Abraham Pierson and Edward Sheaffe. All the above ancestors were early colonists. Of these Mrs. Greene traces to Baldwin, Lines, Cooper, Olmstead and Benedict, each by two distinct lines, and to Richard Sperry three times; these are all English names, and there is not one of her ancestral lines, so far as I know, which is not English, unless it is in the family of Sears, to whom one tradition gives a French father, i. e., Bastiaen Gazeau, but we will not undertake to untangle this line which has been attempted before with little success. Enough has been given above to show that this member of the family Greene came through many lines from England and New England, mostly New Haven, though she has descent, like the Greenes to whom she came, from Plymouth Colony, the Gorhams, Howlands, Tilleys and Sturges; also from Massachusetts Colony, Samuel Cooley and Samuel Chapin.

Lest some should wonder at the omission in the body of the work, where I tried to give what I could discover as full as possible in the case of every other one mentioned, I add this here.

It has been said: "she is just like the Greenes."—Proverbs, xxxi, 28.

ADDENDA.

I shall here give information concerning descendants between the third and seventh generations, obtained after the type was distributed, and then I will take up and finish the eighth generation.

THIRD GENERATION IN THE LINE OF DESIRE GREENE HINCKLEY.

5. DESIRE³ GREENE (William,² William¹), b. at Barnstable, Oct. 24, 1718. After long search, the division of her father's estate, as I said on page 60, gave me her married name; application to the Town Clerk, J. C. Bearse, Esq., brought word that he found no marriage of Desire to a Hinckley, but he found record of Page, 17, line 29. Strike out last word on the line "descendants was wife of" and substitute "daughters, Olive Tinker, m. Daniel Jones, and had: i. Eliza Jones, who m. Noble Day; ii. Olivia Jones, m." Jeremiah Day in the text.

Page 23. Note. The new Brainerd Genealogy, 1909, supposes Abigail Brainerd m. Benjamin Green Goff, who was bap. 1757. I still doubt it, but will give the facts. Easthampton was named by settlers who came from Eastham, Mass., it was part of Middletown, east of Connecticut River. Benjamin Goff removed thence to Middle Haddam, where his wife d. July 23, 1823, aet. 56. Their children were: i. Benjamin, b. Jan. 1, 1787; d. Dec. 16, 1788; ii. Niel or Othniel, b. 1792; never m., and d. March 19, 1827; iii. Silence, m. Dec. 25, 1826, John Cole, who was bap. Oct. 25, 1795; d. Jan. 14, 1814; one of their children, Eliza Ann Cole, m. Asaph Brooks; iv. Julia Goff, bap. Aug. 25, 1799.

Nathaniel* and wife Desire, and gave me their children's names. The Barnstable Patriot later referred me to Josiah Hinckley, Esq., of Wollaston, Mass. He wanted to learn who were the parents of Desire Greene whom Nathaniel Hinckley married. He named the same three children and thought there were others who d. young. He gave their residence as Great Marshes, now West Barnstable, where Nathaniel was b., son of Benjamin and Sarah (Cobb) Hinckley, on Jan. 30, 1698, and d. April 27, 1779, aet. nearly 81 years. I am indebted to him for the following facts: Desire Greene Hinckley d. in the same place, June 5, 1759. They were both buried in the burial ground of that place and memorial stones mark the graves, hers reads: "she was buried with a still born child in her arms." Children b. in Barnstable:

780 i. Benjamin⁴ Hinckley, bap. May 24, 1747.
 781 ii. Nathaniel Hinckley, bap. March 19, 1748.
 782 iii. Sarah Hinckley, bap. June 29, 1751.

Stephen, page 24 above. He was a sailor and cruised on board a Letter of Marque, against the Spaniards under the authority of one of the South American States fighting for independence. He was successful until his last battle when he was overpowered by numbers, his ship was a wreck and he captured and imprisoned in Moro Castle, Havana; when attempts were made to secure his release, it was said he was dead, but his son went to Cuba, secured evidence that he was alive, laid the matter before our government which sent a man-of-war and brought him back after twelve years' imprisonment. Dr. Geo. W. Hosmer, who gave me these facts, could not tell the son's name, which I regret, but he gave me the name of one daughter:

794 i. Sophia^a Hosmer, who m. — Robinson; she lived to be over 90 years of age, when he saw her in Brooklyn, N. Y., and reports she was then hale and hearty.

APPENDIX D.

CAPT. GREEN OF THE LIGHT HORSE AT WHITE PLAINS,
SEPTEMBER, 1776.

The incident mentioned above, pp. 9-10, spoken of in the family as "when grandpa saved Washington's life," was told me by my grandfather in 1847, and often repeated afterwards by my father, it made an impression on me as a boy of eight years when I first heard it, and I often asked when and where it occurred, but no one seemed to know. When Irving's Life of Washington was published in 1859, father called my attention to the similarity of the incident, but we did not then know that Capt. Green was at White Plains; when I satisfied myself he was there everything was proved.

In the Memoirs of Maj.-Gen. Wm. Heath, p. 68, edition of 1901, is the following:

"27th. The Commander-in-Chief ordered the general officers who were off duty to attend him to reconnoitre" . . . "on this morning when arrived at the ground, to the west and almost parallel with the left of the army as then formed, 'Yonder,' says Maj.-Gen. Lee, pointing, 'is the ground we ought to occupy.' 'Let us go and view it,' replied the Commander-in-Chief. When on the way a Light Horseman came up in full gallop, his horse almost out of breath, and addressed Gen. Washington: 'The British are on the camp, sir!' The general observed: 'Gentlemen we have now other business than reconnoitring.' Putting his horse on full gallop for the camp, and followed by the other officers, after arriving at Headquarters, the Commander-in-Chief turned to the officers and only said: 'Gentlemen, you will return to your respective posts and do the best you can.'"

In Bolton's History of Westchester Co., Vol. I, p. 570, the above is copied in full.

In Irving's Life of Washington, Vol. II, p. 390, it reads: ". . . now that Gen. Lee was arrived Washington rode out with him and other general officers, who were off duty, to reconnoitre a height which appeared more eligible. When arrived at it, Lee pointed to another on the north still more commanding: 'Yonder,' said he, 'is the ground we ought to occupy.' 'Let us go then and view it,' replied Washington. They were gently riding in that direction when a trooper came, spurring up his panting horse. 'The British are in the camp, Sir!' cried he. 'Then gentlemen,' said Washington, 'we have other business than reconnoitring.' Putting spurs to his horse he set off for the camp at full gallop, the others spurring after him."

In the War Department, Record Office, are returns of "seven troops of Light Horse of State of Connecticut," Sept. 27, 1776, and Oct. 4, 1776, in each of which James Green appears as captain.

APPENDIX E.

OTHER DEEDS OF REALTY OF CAPT. JAMES GREEN
PRESERVED BY THE FAMILY.

Deed, Nov. 29, 1759, Nathaniel Tyler to James Green, contained 9/16th and one-quarter of 1/16 of land and house near Connecticut River.

Deed from Richard Alsop included 1/2 a dwelling house, it is April 24 1765, in former list.

Deed, March 10, 1769, made by Silvanus Tinker, consideration £60, includes wharf and grant for same at the Landing and one-half of the store house. There may have been a confirmatory deed Jan. 20, 1770, as the deed I took from records seems to cover same.

Deed, July 26, 1773, conveys ten and one-third acres.

Deed, June 11, 1774, conveys one acre and fifty-two rods.

Deed, Nov. 10, 1778, for £120 mentioned on p. 14 above, conveyed four and one-half acres and seventy-six rods. Description, starts at N. E. corner of Tinker and Lord's land on highway runs along said land to Nathan Goodspeed's land, then east then north, to and along highway. This same piece the grantee above sold Oct. 20, 1805, to his son Richard Green for $150, showing realty was on the decline.

Deed, March 16, 1779, conveys three and three-quarter acres.

Deed, Feb. 27, 1781, which I did not mention above, was from Vinter Smith, a free negro, who conveyed four and three-quarter acres for £30.

Deed, Oct. 4, 1783, mentioned above, conveyed four acres a little north of the Landing, for £20. Ruth Green signed as witness.

Deed, Nov. 15, 1784, by administrator conveying fifteen acres with two-thirds of a dwelling house, north of the meeting house.

Deed, Jan. 24, 1786, was also from Vinter Smith for £40.

Deed, Feb. 20, 1786, conveyed thirteen and one-half acres on Salmon River.

Deed, July 14, 1786, of Eben Gray, conservator of Deborah Robinson of Windham, for £50 conveys thirty-three acres on the Neck.

Deed, March 6, 1789, Bezaleel Brainerd, land on the Neck adjoining other land of Green for £10.

Deed, June 17, 1793, the aforesaid V. Smith for £26, 15s. conveyed eleven acres known as Bald Hill on the Neck.

Deed, Sept. 15, 1778, E. and F. Brainerd, one hundred rods of land adjoining lot bought of Bezaleel Brainerd by the grantee, consideration $4.

Twenty-four purchases of real estate, including those on pp. 13, 14, in forty-four years.

I have no record of his sales, except the one mentioned above to Richard Green. In the inventory of his estate, 1809, only six parcels of real estate are named, to wit.:

House home lot & buildings & horse shed,	$1,600.00
Blacksmith shop and lot,	375.00
Orchard lot, 4 acres @ $15.00,	60.00
Creek row lot, 1.1.0,	75.00
Warner lot, 12.0.0 @ $50.00,	600.00
Cove lot, 7 @ 17.00,	119.00
<hr/>
Real,	$2,829.00
Personal,	579.62

Total value in inventory as appraised, $3,408.62

"Longback," his army horse was set down at $40.00.

P. S. More than sixty years ago, I remember it as if of yesterday, Uncle Fred, gave to his father, in my father's house, the cane which shows in Richard Green's portrait (No. 26). I think I never saw it since his death, until in Feb., 1900, sixty-one years, almost to the day, from his decease, my cousin Sidney gave it to me and at the same time brought the deeds (Appendix E). All of which had been given to him by Uncle Henry (No. 77).

I order all my just debts & funeral expenses to be paid by my executor hereafter named—

To my daughter Sarah Ann I give bequeath & devise the one half of my homestead, meaning the land with the Dwelling House fronting the Landing & west of the Road leading past my Barn to the Episcopal Church to be hers forever, except that in the event of her marriage said estate shall cease—

To my wife Sally I give bequeath & devise all the rest & residue of my estate of whatever kind to be to her & her heirs forever in the full confidence that she will dispose of the same in such manner as shall be right & proper—

I appoint my wife Sally & my son Frederick W. Executor of this my last will & testament.

In writings whereof I have hereunto set my hand & seal this 21st day of June A.D. 1843.

Richard Green [L.S.]

Signed sealed & published by Richard Green the above named Testator as his last will & testament in our presence who in his presence & at his request & in the presence of each other have subscribed our name as Witnesses.

Gideon Higgins, Robert W. Chapman, Alfred Gates.

Ordered to be recorded Feb. 10, 1848, MOSES CULVER, Judge.

The kindly affection which always existed in this family, as I well remember, is shown in this last instrument, where the father, acted out the wishes of his sons, in leaving everything to be divided between their mother and sister. This was not a single instance they were that way through life.

Again no one can read the will of Captain James Green (Appendix C above) without perceiving that he had been his own executor, advancing to his children in his life time, when they were not yet established by their own efforts or inherited property.

Here is another evidence of the affection which for nearly two centuries has been a well known mark of this family. I speak of the branch which I know best and hope this may be true of all the rest.

[THE END.]

A FAMILY TRADITION.

In the making of the family genealogy, I wrote to many parties, I had never seen, for facts.

One writer, after answering my queries, wrote: Nearly seventy years ago I was taken to your grandfather's house; we all called him Uncle Richard. I saw his daughter, she said "I am twenty." I thought that very old. There was a fair daughter-in-law from New York City, she had an infant, so wrapped in blankets I often wondered if it survived, the weather was so warm. Then she asked me if I knew the story of pretty Ruth Green, whose lover never came back, and what was his name?

In my reply I told her: Grandpa had but one daughter, Sarah Ann, born in 1819, if she was twenty the year was 1839; my mother was from New York and I was born that summer. If you will excuse my lack of gallantry I have no recollection of seeing you, but no one else could have been that wrapped-up infant, who is happy to report his survival.

There came a day soon after, when I was alone in the home, and laying aside my work, I mused on the matter just narrated which woke almost-forgotten memories. I took up my pen again and this is what came of it. A tale, conceived in old colonial days but born in due time in this twentieth century day from the labor of this family history.

PRETTY RUTH OF MOODUS LANDING.

I.

COLONIAL DAYS.

There's a story often whispered in the days of long ago,
Of a maiden who had captured all the hearts of village beaux.
She was like a flower in beauty, like a gem of purest ray,
And her laughter rang like music thro' the hours of every day.

She was but a country maiden, but a lassie in her teens,
Who had lived, and who was happy, 'mid those simple village scenes;
And the huskings and the quiltings, always gay when she was there,
For she lived a joyous creature having neither thought nor care.

She was pretty but unconscious, every move was full of grace,
Golden were the curly tresses framing in her classic face,
Like the lily, but rose tinted, through which smiled her eyes of blue,
And her soul was like an Angel's, and her heart was fond and true.

Life was like the quiet river which was flowing by their door,
 Full of strength and full of brightness, shining, moving, ever more.
 So the round of life went merry, changing little, always gay,
 With its only interruption for the Christian's Sabbath-day.
 Then the household, none excepted, master, servant, old and young,
 Gathered in their simple Meeting, where their fathers prayed and sung.

Days were following one another just as it had always been,
 But the days were working changes, charming Ruth was seventeen.
 In the center of the village with the background rising steep,
 All reflected in the mirror of the river at its feet,
 Stood a broad colonial homestead bright in white simplicity,
 Stone approaches, double facing, speaking hospitality.
 Hard the granite steps rose solid from the terrace green and fair
 Softened by the clinging ivy swaying in the summer air.

This was long ago, Remember ! In the old colonial days,
 Common sense was then the fashion, governing the people's ways.
 Strangers seldom came among them, but the Captain had the right
 There, to keep a village " public " entertaining day and night.
 His piazza had an outlook on the river, one mile wide,
 Which by turning showed with windings, many miles of banks and tide.
 Search the world, and you may never come upon a fairer view,
 Than the scene from Moodus Landing, which all seasons bring to you.
 Here then, Ruth, in such surroundings, child and girl and maiden grew,
 As a simple village maiden craving nothing strange or new.

II.

THE VILLAGE MAIDEN.

Coming to the home one eveing, as the shadows eastward range,
 Every long-familiar object, as she entered seemed to change
 For a stranger stood before her, handsome, manly, full of grace,
 Never in her little lifetime had she gazed on such a face,
 Now this youth had come among them, in their quiet home to dwell,
 And the explanations follow, how her heart begins to swell.

That a teacher was expected was the talk of every one,
 But such coming was as nothing to the girl whose school was done.
 Now, the presence she encountered woke a feeling all unknown
 And she seemed to pass from girlhood and become a woman grown.

Days and months ran on uncounted, and the strangeness disappeared,
 Soon they roamed the hills together just as if together reared;
 With her older sister, Hannah, who was just the teacher's age,
 They would gather on the settle and enjoy the printed page.

Tho' the store of books was meagre yet the youth was well supplied,
 With historic and poetic, frivolous or dignified,
 All the mythologic stories seem just at his finger ends,
 While his telling, was so graphic, ever new enchantment lends.

How they coasted to the valley from the frowning hillside ledge;
 How they skated on the river to the towns along its edge !
 Was it strange our village maiden, in the present all engrossed,
 Did not stop to read the future till the pleasing dream was lost ?

Soon the spring came, bringing changes, and to one another care,
 Did he stop to think his going makes her world seem dreary there ?
 Or had neither known the meaning of their sympathetic bliss,
 All forgetful of the future in their present happiness ?

He had loved and it was answered, but the nuptials were forbid,
 If he ever loved another, well that matter has been hid.
 It is known that he was welcome and beloved in other parts,
 And they knew that here his manliness had captured many hearts;
 For he came within a circle which he brightened every day
 So it could but be they missed him when he came to go away.

All those days were big with rumors, full of mischief and alarms,
 And the country people gathered, then went home to fix their arms,
 For the rumors were not idle and the mischief had been done
 And a feverish excitement was possessing every one.

War with all its sad disorders broke upon the startled land,
 And among the first, our hero, for his country takes his stand,
 Men, his story know, and love him, though he perished by the cord,
 He had done his duty nobly for his land, his race, his God.

Every little earthly parting brings a pang and sense of pain,
 But when partings are forever, then the dregs of woe we drain.
 So the wound was opened harshly and the inner spirit wrung
 When the neighbors whispered sadly that their hero had been hung.
 All were shocked and all excited, there was rage till then unknown,
 But one maiden sought her closet and communed with God alone.

Could it be that she expected and awaited his return ?
 We shall never have the answer and the truth will never learn.
 You may talk of hearts forgetting but her heart was not that kind,
 It was tried and so ennobled as the metal is refined.

III.

WAR TIMES.

Little Ruth was never after gay and blithesome as before,
 But her love was never spoken, gossips guessed but nothing more.
 There's a story often whispered in those days of long ago
 That perhaps she lost a lover, but the name they did not know.

After he had gone the maiden sought to comfort and endure,
 Helped the children with their lessons, carried kindness to the poor.
 Did they know that Ruth was bearing all alone a heavy cross ?
 She was busy helping others, hiding from the world her loss.

For the love was never spoken, yet the merry laugh was gone,
 So the gossips guessed and wondered was the pretty Ruth forlorn ?
 And the question oft was whispered in those days of long ago
 Could it be that she who captured had herself been smitten too ?

None had known her to be forward but correct in all she did,
 Possibly the man had, also, failed to see the love she hid.
 But her pastor understood it, or he seenied to think he knew,
 For he knew the youth and loved him, but he kept her secret true.
 Often when he found her nursing with the sick through day and night
 He would stroke her hair while saying: " You're my little Moabite."

Nathan's name was often mentioned, and with praise men gave to few,
 Then our Ruth would grow more quiet and her eyes more liquid blue.
 Hannah loudly sang his praises, Hannah told his virtues o'er,
 Hannah's was a loyal friendship, little Ruth's was something more.

When the father's troop had mustered, when he started for the fight,
 It was Ruth who fixed his sabre, she who strapped his spurs aright.
 Mother saw her namesake sharing all her household drudgery
 And she thought how good our God is, and how thankful I should be.

While the Captain's troop was distant far, contending with the foe,
Came her little brother William, and he said he too must go.
And she kissed the little hero, as she smothered back a sigh
But she placed her precious Bible in his pack for Willie's eye.

Who can tell us, in the battle or the prison ship's foul hold,
Of his troubled recollections rushing back from lessons old,
If from out this blessed Bible rose the pretty face of Ruth,
And her sacrificing spirit had made known to him the truth.
For he too had left the home-life, and would there return no more
But would end his patriot life—a boy—and on a hostile shore.

All men knew that he was truthful and as honest as the day,
He was firm and he was loving, fond of work and fond of play.
These have been the family features which their neighbors all affirm
Like heraldic motto, reading: Honest, Truthful, Loving, Firm.

IV.

PEACE.

But at last the war was over after seven awful years
No more marches, no more battles, past were prisons, wounds and fears,
And the Captain with his honors all the more enjoyed his home
And 'tis true that he, as others, loved to "tell how fields were won."

And before the Captain's back-log comrades had their pipes and flip,
There to hear of White Plains battle and the Cap's Headquarter's trip.
Or upon the porch in summer when the nights were warm and fair,
They would talk of Saratoga and Burgoyne's capture there.

While the men of fights and marches brought the old days back again
Faithful Ruth appeared unconscious save of needle, ball and skein,
Yet her eyes were watching each one, guessing wants before a move,
While the old man turned to watch her, with a holy father love,
And her mother thought her helpful, more than all the rest had been;
As the Scripture girl and mother so these Ruths were ever seen.

This Ruth "clave" to both her parents and had love for all the rest.
Happy are the human parents who are with such children blest.
All the village said: "The father could not live without her now."
But from out a cloudless heaven came bereavement with a blow,
And this earthly angel flitted with God's other angels bright,
Leaving but a desolation, where her presence had been light.
And the gossips drew together simply saying: "We don't know,
But she was a pretty creature, it is sad to lose her so."

V.

FINALE.

I have seen the place they laid her, in God's acre, beautiful,
And I wondered as a stripling, if the maid, so dutiful,
Felt a joy to know the father, who had been her love and pride,
And the mother whom she aided, were as ever at her side.

Tell me is there any comfort after life is ended here
To be sure that all around us are the friends we held most dear?
On the Captain's left and right they wait the resurrection call,
And, as always, undivided, his two Ruths, more dear than all.
Now I can but think it seemly that as dear ones are removed
Their remains should not be scattered but be placed by those they loved.

And the River, now a hundred years, has flowed below the spot,
 And men have come and men have gone—how few are not forgot?
 I have only told the story which I heard in early youth
 And I must confess the story made me very fond' of Ruth.

In the village by her virtues she was lifted to a plane
 That but few attain to ever, and the young can scarcely gain.
 And while all approved her life-work, and admired her, young and old,
 There were few who could remember half the story I have told.
 It was treasured by her kindred how the gay had turned to grave
 And they said to one another, "Darling Ruth was good and brave."

I have drawn aside the curtain with a sense of sacred awe,
 Not in pride or inquisition, but to add one record more
 Of a life all consecrated but with nothing of parade,
 Where the sunshine not the cloister saw the sacrifice she made.

There were only few who knew her (few will know when we are gone),
 God, the Judge of all the earth, knew well the good that she had done,
 And the jewels for her crowning had been gathered up on high
 Where the Saviour introduced her to His mansions in the sky.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

3 9999 06396 475 1

235 CENTRAL PARK WEST, N. Y.,

July 29, 1909.

My work of many years is completed and while the limited edition prevents my giving to many, yet I am trying to remember those who showed interest and especially those who contributed to my information and added to my illustrations.

I prefer to give to my kindred what has been a pleasure to me to compile, rather than to reimburse myself and stain our lares and penates with commercialism.

I have told the story of our family, truthfully, I believe, tho in many cases I knew less than I could wish and in some have hesitated to say all that I might, but I have found no occasion to conceal any act in the life of any descendant of William and Elizabeth (Warren) Greene, of Plymouth Colony. May the historian, who takes up this record, be able to say the same.

It will be seen that facts were obtained up to the moment of going to press, and these were added, at the risk of disarranging the symmetry of the work, believing that they will be better out of place than out altogether.

I have reserved No. 1 for you, postage
Please notify me how to deliver and oblige

Yours very truly,
